Great Online Teachers Seminar

Michelle Pacansky-Brock, Ed.D.
(9:00am – 4:00pm)

Since the 1960s, the National Great Teachers Movement has inspired thousands of educators. This event will leverage the concept of a GTS, but with a twist! As an online instructor, you understand that online teaching is unique from face-to-face teaching. And, as such, you need dedicated time to share, listen, and discuss the opportunities and challenges that come along with online teaching and learning. This 1-day seminar will provide a positive environment for online instructors to connect, share, and grow together in community.

Instructional Media

@ONE
(9:00am – 12:00pm)

With digital media resources becoming ever easier to locate and use as part of our instructional content, it is important to understand the rights associated with these resources. This workshop will provide a brief overview of what copyright is and to whom it applies; introduce you to aspects of copyright law that have implications for faculty and instructional designers; explain creative commons licensing; and provide you with resources for creating your own instructional media.
